(4) Effect of new accounting standards becoming effective during the Reporting Period

From 1 January 2019, the Group implemented the “Accounting Standards for Business Enterprises No. 21 — Leases” (the “New Lease Standards”), as revised and issued by the Ministry of Finance of the People’s Republic of China (the “MOF”).

Pursuant to the New Lease Standards, for leasing assets under operating leases, the lessee shall first identify the lease. Lease contracts that fall within the definition of a lease shall be accounted for according to the requirements of the New Lease Standards. At initial recognition, a lease liability shall be recognized for the leased assets under operating leases measured at the present value of the remaining lease payments on the commencing date of the lease, and a right-of-use asset shall be recognized at lease liabilities and other costs (such as initial direct expenses and restoration obligations) at the same time. At subsequent measurement, the right-of-use asset shall be depreciated with depreciation expenses recognized, and the interest expenses of the lease liabilities shall be recognized using the effective interest method at the same time. Short-term leases and leases of low-value assets are exempted from the above requirements. Accordingly, the disclosures in financial reports shall be amended simultaneously. There are no material changes in accounting treatments for other lease modes. Based on the aforementioned change of accounting policy and in consideration of the specific circumstances of the Group, the effects of adjustments arising from the aforementioned accounting policy at the balance sheet dates are set out in “4.2 Status in relation to adjustments to the first implementation of financial statements at the beginning of the year for the implementation of New Financial Instruments Standards, New Income Standards and New Lease Standards for the first time”. The implementation of the aforementioned new standards does not have any significant impacts on the Group’s financial position, operating results and cash flow.
